Kilmainham Mill

Our multi-disciplinary design team has tendered for a company to conduct some investigative digging along the Mill Race. All appropriate measures including licensing have been taken and DCC's Archaeology Section will attend the dig. Detailed design drawing for the enabling works are currently in progress. We remain on track to tender for a construction company to carry out the main work in January.

In September of this year DCC facilitated local school tours to the site.

A Walk – Garden Installation at Richmond Barracks

On Monday 30th September 2019 Lord Mayor Paul McAuliffe launched A Walk – garden installation in Richmond Barracks. In early 2019 Joanne Byrne, artist, was commissioned by Eadaoin Ní Chléirigh, former CEO, Richmond Barracks and Ruairi O Cuiv, Public Art Officer, to create an installation in the garden of Richmond Barracks to commemorate the walk taken by the 1916 Rising leaders across the Officer's Square to their court-martial trials held in the Officer's Block. The garden at Richmond Barracks now lies in the former Officer's Square and the artist's brief was to create a piece that should have physical and emotional elements that stimulate the imagination and promote contemplation and reflection of this historic walk. Artist, Joanne Byrne, who has a background in graphic design, was drawn to a typographic approach and was inspired by an 1892 diary entry by Countess Markievicz who wrote, "Nature should provide me with something to live for, something to die for The artist worked in association with A.D. Design who fabricated the lettering from corten steel. An accompanying interpretative panel also created from corten steel has been installed to provide historical context to visitors.

- Marrowbone Lane Greening – The project will permanently remove informal car parking from the hard-standing area here and create a raised planted area alongside the boundary of Summer Street flats, landscaped with trees and seasonal planting. The remaining hard-standing area will be resurfaced. Construction is now expected to start in January.
