

City Hall: Special Lighting Policy (2021)

INTRODUCTION

- 1) City Hall was originally built as the Royal Exchange and was completed in 1779. It was used by the merchants of Dublin as a financial centre until Dublin Corporation bought the building in 1851. Following a programme of alterations, it was re-opened as City Hall in 1852. The building underwent a two-year refurbishment programme in 1998 – 2000 and has now been restored to its former eighteenth century glory. It is one of the most iconic buildings in Dublin City and indeed is recognised internationally.

The building has an external lighting system that, in addition to its use for essential operational lighting (eg security, health and safety etc), allows the building to be lit in a single colour wash (including blackout). Such lighting can not only help highlight the building's architectural features, but can in turn help Dublin City Council to participate in celebrations and commemorations in the wider community, strengthen public engagement and promote Dublin City, all of which can have a positive reputational impact. However, conversely, inappropriate and over-use of the special lighting facility could adversely affect the reputation of the Dublin City Council.

This special lighting policy sets out the parameters and criteria that must be met for special lighting to be allowed and the process through which applications can be made, considered and, if approved, put into effect. Certain definitions are also contained herein and apply in relation to this policy.
