1) Councillor Nial Ring Submitted: 11th June 2024

In the Council meeting last November Lord Mayor Daithí De Róiste launched the plan to make Dublin the world's first Autism Friendly Capital City. At the same meeting the following motion in my name was taken without debate, "That the members of Dublin City Council ("DCC") welcome the recently published Final Report of the Oireachtas Joint Committee on Autism and commit DCC to implementing the recommendations of the extensive report where applicable to DCC. In particular, DCC commits to the recommendations (in particular the provision of sensory rooms) pertaining to autism-friendly social housing, autism-friendly public buildings such as public offices and libraries as well as autism-friendly public spaces such as parks, playgrounds etc. In addition, the members note the recommendations that autism training should be provided to staff, and agree that this should be offered to councillors if requested".

Having regard to the foregoing, the members now agree that it will be one of the priorities of this Council to implement the Lord Mayor's plan and the Oireachtas recommendations and, as a first commitment to our plan, Sensory Calming Spaces will be created/installed in all public accessible buildings (Libraries etc.) and Sensory Activity Areas will be provided in public parks as soon as practicable.

Dublin City Council welcomes the acknowledgement by the Taoiseach and Government that the housing development targets set in 'Housing for All' are inadequate and must be revised upwards by at least 50 per cent and, pursuant to section 130 of the Local Government Act 2001, determines that it is the policy of this Council –

1. that, in consequence, the targets handed down by the Government to this Council, and adopted in its Housing Delivery Action Plan, are also inadequate and need to be increased,

2. that such amended targets need to be further increased to take account of the reality that an ambitious target for an overall expansion in housing supply can only be met by significantly expanding the delivery of local authority housing, and
3. that the social housing delivery targets set out in the Dublin City Council Housing Delivery Action Plan should accordingly be and are hereby [doubled].
4. To examine increasing the housing maintenance staff to enable a swifter and more efficient return to use of "voids" housing units.

This committee calls for a new traffic management plan for the Clonshaugh area. Poor air quality causes an estimated 1,300 premature deaths in Ireland per year. This is a particular problem in urban centres and particulate matter from internal combustion vehicles is a major contributor. The Clean Air Strategy for Ireland has noted the role of transport demand management in improving air quality. This motion calls for the introduction of ultra-low emissions zones in Dublin City and supports the introduction of WHO guideline values prior to 2040.

The recent Environmental Protection Agency publication 'Air quality in Ireland 2022' shows that poor air quality causes an estimated 1,300 premature deaths in Ireland per year due to particulate matter.

The World Health Organisation has estimated that 4.2 million premature deaths globally were linked to ambient air pollution in 2019, mainly from heart disease, stroke, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, lung cancer, and acute respiratory infections in children. The EPA's air quality monitoring has shown that while we met the EU legal requirements in 2022, we did not meet the more stringent World Health Organisation air quality guidelines for health and the comments by the EPA that “reducing our use of cars to go to school, work and play are actions that will contribute towards achieving the WHO guidelines”

The 2019 report commissioned by the Irish Heart Foundation estimates that by achieving the final WHO Guidelines, Ireland could reduce annual premature deaths by more than 500. The Clean Air Strategy for Ireland says “the establishment of low emission zones or congestion charging as well as other demand management measures in our cities is something which has been highlighted as a potential solution to air quality issues in highly trafficked urban areas.” The findings of a recent review of the use of ultra-low emissions zones in The Lancet Public Health on low emission zones around the world which found positive air pollution-related health outcomes, with the most consistent effect being on cardiovascular disease.

As a city council we agree to introduce ultra-low emissions zones in Dublin City and to meet the WHO guideline values prior to 2040.

This council agrees that we should adopt a Housing First for Youth (HF4Y) strategy modelled on that in use in Waterford which involves the county council, Focus Ireland and the Department of Housing and provides extensive wrap around care and ongoing support to the service users, many of whom are leaving foster care or other care settings or homeless as a result of their LGBTQ+ status. The outcomes from this approach have been extremely positive. The model adheres to the core principals of:

- A right to housing with no preconditions
- Youth choice, youth voice and self determination
- Positive youth development and wellness orientation
- Individualised client driven support with no time limits
- Social inclusion and community integration

To that end, the council should establish a working group within the housing SPC with elected representatives, management engagement, representatives from focus Ireland and other potential relevant stakeholders to ensure delivery of same.
