STORYTIME PROJECT

Storytime aims to engage with parents of pre-reading children to support and guide them in reading to their children and in encouraging oral language development. Research shows that children with better developed oral language skills start school more successfully and this positive experience colours their future educational achievement.

The five-week programme was delivered in the autumn in Coolock library (65 participants) and Ballyfermot library (40 participants) in partnership with the Northside Partnership, the Ballyfermot Partnership, and the Marino Institute of Education. A further 120 parents will participate in the first half of 2017.

COMMEMORATIVE NAMING

The Commemorative Naming Committee was established by Dublin City Council in 2013 to make recommendations regarding the naming of key infrastructure and the selection of individuals or events which will be commemorated through the erection of civic monuments or plaques. Proposals for the naming of infrastructure and dedication of memorials and plaques must be formally submitted through an agreed process.

To date the Commemorative Naming Committee has overseen the process, including a lengthy public consultation process, to name the Rosie Hackett Bridge in May 2014. The East Link Bridge was officially named "The Tom Clarke Bridge" in May 2015. There is currently a request to name the Drumcondra Bridge over the River Tolka "The Frank Flood Bridge" which is going through the official process.

The Commemorative Naming Committee along with the Arts and Cultural Advisory Committee are currently considering a proposal from the Liam Mellows Memorial Committee to commission a life size statue of Liam Mellows in Mellows Park. This request is also going through the official process. The Commemorative Naming Committee adopted an official Dublin City Council Commemorative Plaques scheme in 2013. The text on the plaques is in Irish and English.

There are frequent requests for commemorative plaques to be erected under the scheme, particularly during the 1916 commemorations.

EVENTS SECTION

Smithfield Christmas tree lighting ceremony - 24th November

The Smithfield Christmas event attracted larger numbers than in previous years. It included market stalls and music acts and attracted a lot of very positive attention for the area. The Events Section also worked with the Dublin Film Festival, who gave children and adults an opportunity to sit in a director's chair on the stage and talk about their favourite Christmas film, while being filmed and shown on the big screen. Up to 4,000 people attended the event and enjoyed the festive atmosphere on the plaza. The businesses in the Smithfield area have welcomed events on the Square as they promote the area and bring an increase in footfall.

Lord Mayors Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony, O'Connell Street – 27th November

The O'Connell Street event was more challenging this year as a result of ongoing Luas Cross City works, but with the co-operation of all of the statutory agencies, the event worked well in its new location and was enjoyed by all who attended. The event featured Irish music acts and pantomime cast, along with Al Porter and Dustin the turkey carrying out MC duties. The event attracted approximately 9,000 spectators over the course of the event.

Moving Crib and Christmas Wonderland, Mansion House 6th – 24th December

The forecourt of the Mansion House was turned into a Winter Wonderland on the 6th December, with the live crib getting more visitors than ever this year. Visitors were shown around the attraction by helpful elves, which also featured many other festive elements. Weekends were particularly popular, with thousands of visitors availing of the free family experience. Adults and children alike enjoyed taking photos in the magical Wonderland setting and posting letters to Santa while visiting the crib.

NYF Dublin 29th - 31st December

This year's New Year's Festival saw revellers ringing in the New Year at the 3Countdown Concert at St. Stephens Green South and enjoying the incredible "Sky Dance at the Custom House", a spectacular aerial outdoor performance by Fidget Feet. Luminosity 3D animations were also enjoyed at the Custom House over the three days. New Year's Day also saw further celebrations with a free family concert at St. Stephen's Green. Other free events, as part of an additional Arts Programme, included the NYF Dublin music trail, walking trails, pop up street performances and amazing cultural events throughout the city.

Filming Update

A number of large scale films will be shot in Dublin during 2017. The first of these will start early January and is called "The man who invented Christmas", which is based around the life of Charles Dickens. The Film Liaison Officer is working closely with the Irish Film Board to promote Dublin City as a great film location.

IAWATST

Interesting And Weird At The Same Time

The Office of Public Works (OPW) and the Department of Finance of the Stormont Executive (DoF) have been collaborating on organising art exhibitions since the late 1990s. These exhibitions involve touring artworks from both public owned collections to venues throughout the island. In recent years, the exhibitions have opened up into broader partnerships with other cultural organisations. In 2016, the OPW and the DoF collaborated with Dublin City Council, the LAB Gallery in the organisation of the annual touring exhibition. This year's project has involved working with the curatorial team from the LAB Gallery and with the children and teachers from the Central Model Senior School in Dublin who have been using the innovative Visual thinking Strategies (VTS) method of looking at art for three years.

The children from 4th class in the Central Model Senior School visited the offices of the OPW in Dublin and the DoF in Belfast to select artworks for inclusion in the exhibition. Using VTS, the LAB team led lively discussions with the children on their visits to the two art stores in Dublin and Belfast and also continued their work in the class room to select 20 artworks for the IAWATST exhibition.

IAWATST 'interesting and weird at the same time' – is the descriptive abbreviation written down by one of the children when making their selection for inclusion in the exhibition. It is an intriguing title that reflects the children's fresh and open responses through the VTS system to the historic and contemporary works in both collections.

The exhibition opens in The Printworks in Dublin Castle in November. It then travels to the Alley Theatre and Gallery in Strabane in December. It will then be on view in the LAB Gallery in February 2017.

The LAB Gallery

Different Republic

Co-curated by Arts & Disability Ireland and Fire Station Artists' Studios in partnership with the LAB Gallery.

November 17 - February 05 2017

As the final exhibition in our year of commemorations, A Different Republic explores universal human rights in a year of commemorations, being both the centenary of 1916 and the 20 year anniversary of the Irish government's landmark report of the Commission on the Status of People with Disabilities 'A Strategy for Equality'. Fire Station Artists' Studios and Arts & Disability Ireland in partnership with The LAB Gallery are delighted to present this new work that reflects on the current state of the nation from different perspectives.

The LAB Gallery's programme for 2016 saw a series of new commissions responding to ideas of commemoration developed for the gallery by artists Bridget O'Gorman, John Beattie, Sabina MacMahon, John Byrne, Chad Keveny and Jane Locke in collaboration with research partners including the ESB Centre for the Study of Irish Art, the National Gallery of Ireland, the National Museum of Ireland and MA Art Research Collaboration iadt.

Audio description, speech to text and Irish Sign Language were available at the preview courtesy of Arts and Disability Ireland. Audio description and additional audio information are available throughout the exhibition using Discovery Pens, a service specially developed for audiences with visual impairments.

The exhibition is accompanied by a specially commissioned text by Nathan O'Donnell and was selected as a Critic's Pick for the international art magazine Frieze. For Dublin Gallery weekend we held live performances in the gallery, workshops for children and families and special tours.

Children's Art in Libraries (CAL)

CAL continued a partnership approach to local arts development with the successful tour of Stór bilingual 1916 related play performed for 24 primary schools for over 1000 children. The play was performed in all 5 areas of Dublin throughout November and December. The project was produced with assistance from Dublin City Libraries , Dublin City Commemoration initiative, Foras na Gaeilge and axis Ballymun.

Our Early Years phase one training partnership with Northside Partnership, "Preparing for Life", was evaluated by participants as being highly effective and inspiring. Early years educators and their children from centres in Darndale and Coolock were immersed in a 2 month programme in Coolock Library supported by experienced performance and visual artists from the Arts Office's Artist Panel, Common Ground and Galway's esteemed bilingual children's theatre company, Branar. The educators' feedback indicates they are already able to adapt techniques and ideas inspired by the programme directly into their workplace. It is anticipated that this partnership approach with develop further into phase 2, Educator Training and phase 3 Artist Residencies within their own early years education settings in 2017.

In early November DCC Arts Office CAL programme facilitated a Children's Arts sector Development seminar in The LAB focusing on the theme of collaboration (artistic; organisational; child focused; regional and civic) .The day began with a showcase performance from Branar. Contributors included City Arts Officer Ray Yeates, Marc McLochlainn, (Branar) and Rhona Matheson (Starcatchers, Scotland); and Aideen Howard, Director of The Ark. The seminar concluded with an information session on our forthcoming International Early Years Arts Commission. The four Dublin Local Authorities (Dublin City Council, Fingal County Council, Dún Laoghaire-Rathdown County Council and South Dublin County Council) are working in partnership to invite applications for the creation of new artwork(s) of ambition, scale and depth for an early childhood audience. This opportunity is funded by the Arts Council of Ireland's Invitation to Collaboration Scheme and the four Dublin Local Authorities.

DUBLIN CITY GALLERY THE HUGH LANE

Following the gallery's centenary theme - of the Artist as Witness in Society - the exhibitions programme for 2017 will examine the artist's contribution to historical and social issues under the broad theme of Migrations. Migration has become the pertinent topic of discussion in the globalised modern world and in 2017 we will examine both historical immigration and emigration and the impact of migration as a principle of nature.

In developing and interrogating our Migrations theme, we will engage with diverse audiences through our inclusive in-house programme of exhibitions, talks, lectures and workshops; and our community and schools outreach programmes.

Strategic Plan

The Strategic Plan for the gallery is being finalised and will be presented to the Arts, Culture, Recreation and Community Strategic Policy Committee in early 2017. Extensive consultation took place with stakeholders in order to determine the vision, mission and objectives of the gallery for the next five years.

Visitor Numbers:

The number of visitors to the gallery continues to rise year on year. Visitor numbers in 2016 exceeded 180,000, compared to 156,373 in 2015, which represents a 15% increase in footfall. Through innovative programming of exhibitions and inclusive outreach projects, we aim to continue to build on our visitor numbers throughout 2017.

Capital Programme

Tenders for the award of Design Consultancy Services in relation to the renovation and environmental systems upgrade works to the gallery will be evaluated shortly and it is anticipated that the successful consultant will commence work on a design brief in the first quarter of 2017. Works remain on-target for commencement in Q1 2018, with completion expected late 2018/January 2019. Full closure of the 1930's wing will be required for the duration of 2018, with some more short term closure of other areas of the gallery being likely over the period of works.

Off-site storage

Dublin City Council is the owner of 2052 fine artworks plus the Frances Bacon Archive of approximately 7,500 items. The collection is re-hung annually, and works not on display are stored under controlled environmental conditions in the gallery archive spaces. However, these spaces are limited and as we expand and develop our collection for the enjoyment of future generations, addressing the lack of suitable storage space has become a priority. Suitable space has now been secured in premises which are currently being leased by the OPW, where part of the National Museum collection is currently stored. A lease agreement is being finalised and we will commence the transfer of selected works in early 2016.

Café

A preferred bidder has been selected to operate the gallery café. That party has been notified, and upon expiration of the standstill period, contract negotiations will commence.

Artistic Migrations: Frank O'Meara and Irish Artists Abroad (new display)

As part of our theme for 2017 Artist as Witness: Migrations a new display of twenty paintings drawn from the Gallery's collection has been curated and is now on view.

The display will also include a self portrait by Frank O'Meara, recently acquired by the gallery. The painting is in our conservation studio for technical examination and research on its history. Work on the painting will give us the opportunity to learn more about the painting technique of the artist and his creative process. The technical examination will inform the conservation treatment plan for the painting.

Francis Bacon: Art Books (new display)

This selection of art related books is drawn from the many art historical publications that belonged to Francis Bacon. In addition, multitudinous paint smudged loose leaves torn from books and exhibition catalogues were found among the items in his studio. On view here are exhibition catalogues on Picasso, Matisse, Cézanne, Giacometti, Richard Hamilton and Marcel Duchamp among others. The catalogues of paintings by Irish artist Louis le Brocquy are indicative of a mutual artistic regard.

Sir Hugh Lane: 'That Great Pictured Song' is an illustrated book of essays exploring Hugh Lane's life and achievements. Currently at the design stage, it is due for publication in January 2017.

The Hugh Lane and Create, the national development agency for collaborative arts, as part of the Collaborative Arts Partnership Programme funded by Creative Europe are issuing an open call in December 2016 for a Socially Engaged Commission at Dublin City Gallery / The Hugh Lane (CAPP). The deadline is 27th January 2017 and the Commission budget is 50,000 euro.

Returning Loans

Preparations are underway for the return in January 2017 of loans from the collection to the exhibition Francis Bacon Invisible Rooms in Stuttgart, Germany and to the Creating History exhibition at the National Gallery of Ireland

RECREATION CENTRES

The New Zealand All Blacks and the Dublin GGA Football teams come to Sheriff Street.

Dublin City Council was fortunate to be given the opportunity to host the All Blacks and the Dublin GAA Team, an event in one of Dublin City Councils Recreation Centres on Friday 18th November. DCC approached by Legacy was Consultants on behalf of A.I.G. sponsors of both the All Blacks and the Dublin GAA team. Following that conversation the Recreation Service was absolutely delighted to host the event and organised the use of St Laurence O'Toole's Recreation Centre in Sheriff Street and the DCC All Weather pitch on Common Street. I then contacted the local schools who were delighted to get involved.

The Dublin GAA team and the All Black players took part in a number of sports, hurling, rugby, GAA football and basketball with the children of the local National Schools. The children faced the All Blacks with the Larriers Haka "Lamha Suas"in our sports hall. The event attracted both national and international media interest and made the front page of the Irish Times, Daily Mail and a number of other publications. It was also received a slot on prime time TV on the R.T.E. News and on TV 3.

The children have been matched up by age and the cards personalised to each child. This has proven to be a popular programme with the children and the largest cost being the postage of €11.
